

#100 The Daniel 2:41-43 Feet of Iron and Clay – The U.S. vs. the USSR in the Cold War

Key Understanding #1: The second phase of the Daniel 2:41-43 war(s) between the feet of iron and feet of clay. The Cold War was a second phase of the Daniel 2:41-43 War(s) Between the Feet of Iron and Clay. The results of World War II were the further weakening of the historical European powers of Britain, France, and Germany, leaving the world with two superpowers, the U.S. and USSR. In the simplest of terms, the adversarial and warring relationships of the historical Diocletian and Charlemagne Splits eventually led to the division of the world into two camps – the U.S.-led West, which included West Germany and NATO, and the USSR-led East, which included East Germany and the Warsaw Pact nations.

Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev and U.S. Vice-President Richard Nixon, 1959

Extra Credit – In school, the professor might have given you an extra credit problem asking you to precisely explain the U.S. vs. USSR Cold War in terms of the Diocletian and Charlemagne Splits. If you are inclined towards working toward a PhD in prophecy, you might write it out yourself. It should look something like this:

During World War II, the western part of the Charlemagne Split, represented by France, but allied with Britain and the United States as the Western Allies, was allied further with the eastern part of the Diocletian Split, the USSR. This represented the flanking, or sandwiching, of Germany, which simultaneously represented the eastern part of the Charlemagne Split and the western part of the Diocletian Split. However, as a result of the immediate outbreak of the Cold War at the end of World War II, there was a division of Germany, a division of Europe, and a general division of the world into two camps. In the Cold War division of the West vs. East, the U.S.-led West represented the western part of the Charlemagne Split of France, and a Western Europe NATO alliance that also included the western half of Germany (West Germany). The USSR-led East represented the eastern part of the Diocletian Split, and was allied with the Eastern Europe Warsaw Pact nations that also included the eastern half of Germany (East Germany).

In short, Germany, which had previously represented the eastern part of the Charlemagne Split, and (the eastern part of) the western part of the Diocletian Split, was itself split into two. Its historical role and heartbeat had disappeared, melting away into forced alliances with its former adversaries to the west and east.

Key Understanding #2: How the Charlemagne Split fits with the East-West Cold War. In summary, the West-East Cold War was a U.S.-NATO enlarged western part of the Charlemagne Split, now representing Western Europe in general, vs. a USSR-Warsaw Pact enlarged eastern part of the Diocletian Split, now representing Eastern Europe.

We are jumping ahead of ourselves just a bit, but in this Cold War second phase of the Daniel 2:41-43 War(s) Between the Feet of Iron and Clay, the U.S.-led West would win, again being in the Strong Iron role. The USSR would lose the Cold War and play the role of the Broken Clay. (Remember, in the World War II phase of Strong Iron and Broken Clay, we saw Kenneth Strong and the ‘Man of Iron’ Eisenhower defeat Broken Clay Germany).

If you are following closely, this question might be on your mind. Does this mean that the U.S. was placed in the historical role of France as the representative of the western part of the Charlemagne Split? The answer is ‘yes’, and we are now ready to understand much more about the United States in prophecy.

<< Previous

Main Page and List of Unsealing Summaries

Next >>