

#2136 The Yom Kippur War and the Abomination of Desolation – The post-World War II U.S. waxing great toward the South and toward the East as a second Syria/Antiochus IV Epiphanes, part 395, The History of the Pale of Settlement, (xxii), The anti-Jewish Pogroms in Russia brought Jews from the Pale of Settlement to America

Key Understanding: The pogroms brought Jews from the Pale of Settlement to America.

Depiction of Russian Jews fleeing pogroms in Russia. Emigration via Hamburg, Germany, changed when pogroms began in Russia in 1881. Hamburg served as a safe haven for the Russian Jews and their fellow brethren from Romania and Galicia on their way to the New World, the United States of America.

Jews migrate to America from the Pale. After the assassination of Tsar Alexander II in Russia in 1881, the wave of pogroms in Russia and Eastern Europe led to a large number of Jewish immigrants to the United States and other countries. A characteristic feature of the Jewish migration was the migration of whole families; another characteristic was that very few of those who migrated returned to their countries of origin. Of the Jews who migrated from the Pale of Settlement and Russia, more than 90 percent settled in the United States.

Many of the Jewish immigrants arrived in New York City and stayed there, in the densely-packed Lower East Side. Here a Jewish immigrant found housing in one of the crowded tenement buildings (at more than 700 people per acre, the Lower East Side was the most crowded neighborhood on the planet) and, often, work in one of the local factories. The common language was Yiddish, a Germanic language in several dialects, written with the Jewish Migration. Persecution and expulsions drove two million Jews out of Russia and eastern Europe between 1868 and 1914. Some settled in central Europe; others traveled to Palestine and the Americas.

Hebrew alphabet. From 1882 to 1914, 2 million Jews emigrated from eastern Europe to the United States.

John 18:36 (KJV) Jesus answered, MY KINGDOM IS NOT OF THIS WORLD: if my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight, that I should not be delivered to the Jews: but now is my kingdom not from hence.*

<< Previous

Main Page and List of Unsealing Summaries

Next >>