Key Understanding: The April 2, 1917, pale horse democracy defeats of the pale horse German Empire and pale horse Russian Empire. The Pale Horse Rider defeat of Pale Horse Rider Germany was associated with Woodrow Wilson’s April 2, 1917, war message, in which he asked Congress to declare war specifically on Germany, while the Pale Horse Rider defeat of Pale Horse Rider Russia was associated with Alexander Kerensky’s democratic Provisional Government’s April 2, 1917, abolition of the Pale of Settlement.

Event 1      April 2, 1917      America exercising its role as the Pale Horse Rider, in the form of declaring war and defeating the Prussian (German) Empire.

Kaiser Wilhelm II

The Pale Slaying of the Second Reich

The Pale slaying of Russia

The Pale slaying of the tsarist Russian Empire in World War I by Alexander Kerensky’s democratic Provisional Government (Kerensky is pictured in front of the Pale) is represented and symbolized by the Kerensky government officially “ending” the Pale of Settlement on April 2, 1917, the day of U.S. President Woodrow Wilson’s war message to Congress.
